COUNCIL TAKES GILBERT'S PLAN

For Extension of Streets Crossing West Middle Street West of Round Top Railroad Track. Other Business Transacted.

At an adjourned meeting of the Town Council held on Thursday evening it was decided to follow for the extension southward of the streets intersecting West Middle street, the plans submitted by Calvin Gilbert provided they are identical with the plot of the borough engineer. After these extensions have been plotted the Ordinance Committee will present ordinances for passage by the Council.

Mr. Gilbert's plan allows the opening of a number of lots on the cross streets. The original idea was to have the streets follow their present lines. This would have made the properties peculiar shapes in addition to eventually running into the railroad at the southern end. It was generally felt that such a course would be inadvisable as it was believed the right to cross the railroad could not be secured and desirable building lots would be spoiled. The plan as now outlined has the extensions run at an angle to the present streets but is believed to be much more satisfactory than the one originally talked of.

Council passed a motion instructing the Highway Committee to have a fence and gate erected at the old Minnigh ice pond so as to prevent any but borough employees using the place as a dumping ground and a place for burning refuse.

Rev. W. B. Hooper appeared before Council to request a light on West Confederate avenue near his residence. He stated that new poles would not have to be erected as they were already there. The matter was placed in the hands of the Light Committee.

Mr. Koch, of the Sewer Committee, reported that Baltimore street had a sewer but that the request of Dr. O'Neal made Tuesday evening for a sewer in the rear of his properties would cause him less digging and would save his yard and pavements. Council discussed the matter but again placed it in the hands of the committee for further report.

WAS DRAGGED BY RUNAWAY HORSE

Miss Mae Musselman, of Near Fairfield, Thrown by Horse on which she was Riding, Dragged and Rendered Unconscious.

Thrown from the horse on which she was riding, Miss Mae Musselman, of near Fairfield, was dragged and rendered unconscious about noon on Thursday and remained in that condition for several hours.

Miss Musselman is a daughter of Christian Musselman who lives in Hamilton township about a mile from Fairfield. She mounted a horse to ride to the fields to summon the men to dinner and all went well until she started home when the horse suddenly strayed to prance about. Suddenly, just as she was reaching the barn, the animal gave a lurch and she was thrown heavily to the ground and then dragged some distance.

When picked up she was entirely unconscious and after she was taken to the house medical aid was summoned. It was found that no bones were broken but she suffered severely from shock.

Later in the day consciousness returned and latest reports are that she is getting along nicely. Her early recovery is expected.

PARENTS MUST OBEY THE LAW

Or Truant Officer Utz Must Make Arrests, Says the Gettysburg School Board at its Regular Monthly Meeting.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Gettysburg School Board held on Thursday evening Truant Officer Utz was instructed to enforce strictly the compulsory attendance law and to arrest, if necessary, parents who fail to have their children comply with the law's requirements.

The compulsory attendance law stipulates that children between the ages of six and sixteen must attend school unless, after their fourteenth birthday, they have employment certificates. Mr. Utz has been trying to get the children into school but the Board of Education feels that still more stringent methods must be used.

Accordingly Mr. Utz has been instructed to have all parents arrested who do not see that their children attend regularly.

Desperately Ill.

SENATOR CLAY ILL

Georgia Statesman's Condition Said to Be Desperate.

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 4.—United States Senator Stephen Clay, desperately ill, was brought from his home at Marietta and placed in a sanitarium.

It is said that the senator's condition is desperate and that there is little hope that he will recover. Senator Clay has not been in good health for several years. There is much mystery about the nature of this illness, but it is generally believed that he is suffering from cancer of the stomach.

Should Senator Clay die, his successor would be named by Governor Joseph M. Brown, as the legislature will not meet till next June. It is said that in the event of Clay's death Governor Brown will appoint ex-Governor Joseph M. Terrell.

SAILORS SAVED BY "HOME SWEET HOME"

Music Brought Aid to Shipwrecked Crew.

New York, Nov. 4.—The strains of "Home, Sweet Home," played by two members of the crew of the bark Pallas, fast on the rocks of the island of Grand Cayman, south of Cuba, and wafted ashore by a gale, brought natives to the rescue of Captain Johanson and the sixteen sailors on board the craft.

This is the story told by four of the crew, who arrived at this port on the steamship Vincenzo di Giorgio, from Port Antonio.

The Pallas, which was on the way from Buenos Ayres to Gulfport, Miss., was hit by the terrific West Indian cyclone that caused so much damage and was driven ashore on Oct. 13. It was a very dark night and the crew were despondent, as the bark was pounding on the rocks, while great seas washed over her. In order to cheer up their mates, Hans Jansen and Rolf Jorgensen, one with an accordion and the other with a violin, began to play.

The music was wafted ashore by the wind, and natives who heard it came out in their surf boats and took off the captain and his crew.

In their gratitude the sailors took ashore with them a pig and a dozen chickens, which were roasted for a barbecue, the ship's musicians playing livelier airs than they did during their danger.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. GLASSES MAY SOLVE MYSTERY

Detective Thinks He Has Clue to Headless Victim.

MAY LEAD TO IDENTITY

Eyeglasses Found Alongside of Body in Woods Near Reading May Solve Supposed Murder Mystery.

Reading, Pa., Nov. 4.—A pair of gold eyeglasses, with the initials "W. and O." stamped upon the left ear guard, is expected to lead to the identity of the man who is thought to have been murdered on the Neversink mountain on Aug. 30.

The glasses were found near the spot where the lower section of the body was discovered by gunners on Tuesday. They are in the possession of James J. Merkel, a detective of Berks county, and he went to Philadelphia to see if he can have them identified there by a firm of opticians, who it is believed made the glasses.

Those who are conducting the investigation for Harry D. Schaeffer, the district attorney, are united in the opinion that the man was a resident of Philadelphia.

A telegram from Trenton, N. J., says that Leo A. Mellon, of that city, has been missing for some weeks, and he is believed to be the man whose body was found on Neversink mountain. The body of the murdered man closely resembles that of the description given of the missing man.

Mellon was an Italian and had considerable money. It is believed he was the victim of Black Handers.

Discovery of the lower jaw bone of the victim with three teeth missing, and six ribs, proves that the section of the body that is missing will never be found intact or in such condition as to lend readily to identification. Without the head, the detectives admit that relatives of the man will hardly be able to identify the body.

Suicide Suggested.

While the murder theory is still the one entertained by the investigators, Merkel said he would not be surprised to learn that the man was a prominent resident of Philadelphia who committed suicide on the eastern slope of the Neversink mountain in order to prevent his body ever being found. Such a theory seems tangible, excepting that so much of the body apparently was carried away. In the absence of anything definite that points to foul play.

Merkel has compiled a list of everything found in the wilderness. These articles are as follows:

Serge coat and vest of excellent material. The garments are black now, but Merkel thinks that they were dark blue before they were exposed to the weather.

A gray pair of trousers with a white stripe.

A celluloid collar that does not indicate the size. A tape measure shows that it is sixteen inches from end to end.

A four-in-hand dark necktie, or one that was made to put on the collar by fastening a shield on the tie to the collar.

A black derby hat bearing the name of a Philadelphia store and containing a black silk cord that could have been used to fasten it to a button of the coat in case of it being exposed to the wind. The hat is seven and one-eighth in size.

Clothing Recovered.

A pair of black patent leather shoes, marked "Stand Pat," which is evidently the trade mark of the maker. The shoes do not indicate the size, but a manufacturer who saw them said they were seven and one-half in length and "D" width.

A blue polka dot handkerchief. A shirt that is discolored now, but was white and of good texture when it was new.

Balbriggan underwear of summer weight. Brown socks of good texture.

An empty wallet and an empty pocketbook. Two pairs of eyeglasses. Those bearing the initials "W. and O." are rimless and of 14 karat gold. The others have steel rims and the right lens is cracked.

A round metal key ring containing two keys. One was made by the Yale & Towne company and is known as a "paracentric" key. It was used as a latch key. The other was evidently made for a hand satchel or a suit case.

Joy For Texas Negroes.

San Antonio, Tex., Nov. 4.—There has been a demand for special delivery letters at Uvalde recently, and on investigation Postmaster Goldbeck finds that negroes are the principal buyers of that class of stamps. Out of twenty-nine special deliveries last month only five were to white residents. To have a letter delivered to their home by white carriers is why the negroes buy special delivery stamps.

NEARLY DIED LAUGHING

Sight of "Shaved Tail" Horse Nearly Fatal to Trader.

Lawrenceburg, Ind., Nov. 4.—For almost two hours S. H. Scharpp, aged fifty-six years, a tobacco grower and horse trader, continued to laugh, at his home on Tanner's creek, with two physicians working with him to stop the laugh. When electricity was used the doctors finally succeeded. Scharpp dropped over completely exhausted and it was thought that he would die.

Scharpp traded a mule for a "shaved tail" horse with Aaron M. Elliott, who remarked "that the tail goes with the hide." Elliott took a false tail from under the seat of his buggy and strapped it on the "shaved tail" horse, when Scharpp began to laugh and continued to do so until he nearly laughed him self to death.

JOB HANGS ON QUEUE

Chinese Minister Must Cut It Off or Resign.

Washington, Nov. 4.—Whether to resign in preference to cutting off his queue is the decision Minister Chang Yin-tang, of China, must reach within the next few days. He cannot hold his diplomatic position unless the appendage is removed.

This order affecting every Chinese diplomat abroad has been officially announced. At the legation it has been expected ever since Prince Tsai Tao, the first Manchu nobleman to adopt the Occidental fashion of hair cutting, paid his visit to Washington in April.

Minister Chang, although an able diplomat, is not an old official in point of service, and his colleagues here believe that he would rather sacrifice his position than his hair. Minister Chang has been here eleven months.

THE FIRST SNOW FALL OF WINTER

Central and Eastern Part of Pennsylvania Have Blizzard.

Philadelphia, Nov. 4.—Philadelphia had its first snow of the season yesterday, and although not of any intensity, it gave a most wintery tinge to the raw, chilly day. Reports from up the state show that the central part of the state suffered most. In that section the electric lines were blocked and the telephone and telegraph lines suffered a great deal of inconvenience.

Worst at Shenandoah.

Shenandoah, Pa., Nov. 4.—The first snow blizzard of the season visited this section yesterday and increased in force as the day wore on. Business was at a standstill. Many shade trees and garden bushes are leveled to the ground. Fully nine inches of snow fell.

Heavy Fall at Easton.

Easton, Pa., Nov. 4.—The first touch of fall weather came in this section yesterday, rain followed by snow. There is a white covering of nearly two inches in depth over the entire section, and reports from the slate region at the base of the Blue mountains show a still heavier fall.

Scranton Enveloped.

Scranton, Pa., Nov. 4.—Five inches of snow has fallen in this city and a depth of ten inches is reported from the mountains. Trains are late and the trolley roads are only able to move cars behind sweepers.

MARTIAL LAW IN HONDURAS

Government Takes Steps to Combat General's Revolt.

Washington, Nov. 4.—Martial law has been declared in Honduras, and as a direct result of the revolt of General Jose Valladares, the deposed commandant of Amapala, against the government, according to cable advices to the state department from Minister McCreery at Tegucigalpa.

The port of Amapala has been closed and the island is in a state of siege.

Slain and Robbed of $5000.

Salem, Ore., Nov. 4.—Highwaymen shot and killed J. E. Roberts, a real estate man of this city, near the State Reform school, two and a half miles south of the city, and robbed him of $5000. Roberts was on his way to his brother's home to pay off a note, and it is believed the highwaymen had knowledge of his intentions.

CHARGES AGAINST LACKAWANNA

Accused of Daring Plot to Destroy Coal Company.

TRUST ALSO ARRAIGNED

Marian Company Alleges Rate Discrimination, Attempt to Burn Property and Dictation.

Washington, Nov. 4.—A sweeping denunciation of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad company, in which it is charged with repeatedly attempting to drive a competing company out of business, and an arraignment of the so-called "anthracite coal trust," are contained in a complaint filed with the interstate commerce commission by the Marian Coal company, of Wilmington, Del. Reparation in the sum of $55,239, because of alleged excess charges, is demanded.

The statement sets forth allegations of one of the most remarkable series of business embarrassments ever figured before the commission. It not only attacks the alleged unjust and discriminatory rates to which the Marian company has been subjected as "based on a monopoly maintained through the device of the Temple Iron company, the directors of which are the presidents of the railroads, constituting the anthracite coal trust," but charges at tempted dictation of production, interference with prospective purchasers of the plant, diversion of water supply and heaping of fuel on a fire that had threatened destruction to the Marian company's washery at Taylor, Pa.

The Marian washery is on a Lackawanna division switch, which also serves three collieries alleged to belong to the Lackawanna interests. The complaint sets forth various acts as preventing equality of conditions as between the Marian and alleged favored competitors "who constitute the trust." Some of the acts charged against the company are:

Charges Against Company.
That it attempted to compel the Marian company to sell its product to the Lackawanna on an agreement as to output restriction that would have driven the Marian company out of business.

That the Lackawanna refused to quote rates, local or interstate.
That the Marian company finally offered its property for sale, and the Lackawanna having obtained, in confidence, the names of the bidders, notified all bidders that if they bought the Marian property they would buy a law suit.

That the Lackawanna deliberately routed the Marian company's products over longer hauls at higher rates than were imposed on favored shippers.
That the Lackawanna deliberately built two dams to divert water from the Marian's coal washery.

That connecting carriers refused to put into effect through joint rates that would absorb the prohibitive switching charges of the Lackawanna.
Charges of Incendiarism.
That in 1906 the Lackawanna, when notified that a fire on its culm bank threatened destruction to the Marian property, not only sent word to the Marian people that "it was nobody's business," but deliberately dumped new fuel on the fire, causing destruction of 75,000 tons of the Marian's valuable material and costing $7000 expended in saving the Marian's culm bank from destruction.

That the Lackawanna charged the Marian company 30 cents a ton for hauling its coal 5000 feet from the washery to a Central Railroad of New Jersey connection so as to equal exactly the additional price for coal the Marian company might have obtained along the Central's line. Other shippers had a much less rate.

There are many other allegations in the voluminous complaint.
The Marian company asks that a fair rate schedule to tide water not exceeding 75 cents a ton on rice and barley coal be set by the commission and that existing discriminatory practices by the railroad company be abolished.

WHITE HOUSE COW IS ON THE JOB

"Pauline Wayne, 3d," Arrives in Washington.

Washington, Nov. 4.—Her bovine majesty, Pauline Wayne, 3d, future provider of milk for the president's family, grazed contentedly upon the White House lot, oblivious to the general fuss that was being made about her arrival, the click of cameras and the bustling of stable employees.

Pauline reached Washington after a two days' journey from Kenosha, Wis., where is located the farm of United States Senator Stephenson, who has given her to Mr. Taft. Pauline was chartered on her trip east by Jim Torrey, superintendent of the Stephenson farm and a warm friend of the cow.

Pauline is heavy for one so young. She weighs 1500 pounds, about twice as much as the ordinary animal has as a few black spots on a white background, and is No. 115,580 in the Holstein-Friesian Association of America.

Her cowship's great aunt, Gertrude Wayne, used to give twelve gallons of milk a day. Pauline, however, is only four years old and has yielded daily out seven and a half gallons.

The stork is hovering over Pauline. Senator Stephenson has strong hope that "Pauline, if she behaves herself like a well bred cow, ought eventually to equal the output of her great forebear.

The president has already promised Pauline's calf to W. W. Price, who farms at night in Maryland and works as a newspaper correspondent at the White House in the daytime.

PHILA. CAR MEN MAY STRIKE

Arbitrators Deadlocked on Meaning of "Loyal Men."

C. O. PRATT ARRESTED

Detectives Beat and Imprison Labor Leader For Making Speeches For Keystone Party Candidate.

Philadelphia, Nov. 4.—With the two arbitrators appointed to determine the meaning of the term "loyal men" in absolute deadlock, and the motormen and conductors themselves aroused to a high pitch of indignation because of the refusal of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit company's arbitrary refusal to carry out the spirit of the agreement which ended the strike last spring, every development of the last few days indicates that another walkout may now be but a matter of hours.

Three thousand or more employees attended the all night meeting held at Labor Lyceum hall. The report of the arbitration meetings was rendered, explanatory speeches were made by C. O. Pratt and President Peter Driscoll, and the result was that the men practically unanimously adopted a course which is in every detail the counterpart of the one preceding the eight weeks' strike which began last February.

The sudden arrest and imprisonment of C. O. Pratt just after he had left the carmen's headquarters perhaps did more to arouse indignation at the meeting than did the men's own grievances. He was arrested on the charge of disturbing the peace.

Pratt was pounced upon, beaten over the face and head by two plain clothes men and compelled to walk to the police station. There all his personal correspondence and other effects were taken from him. He was released later.

While the detectives were beating him Pratt asked a policeman in uniform to protect him. The officer only laughed and told his assailants to go ahead. Trolley men and labor leaders say it is a return of the "militarism" and brutal tactics of the police during the strike of last February. They say Pratt incurred the enmity of the police by making political speeches for Berry, Giboney and the Keystone ticket, and that it is the beginning of a campaign of intimidation and assault on independent voters in a desperate attempt to carry the city for Tener.

Witnesses to the arrest of Pratt say he was alone and was not "disturbing the peace," but that he was attacked by two men while walking down Twelfth street. After beating Pratt the men placed him under arrest. They were detectives from the city hall and claimed to be acting under orders.

M'CURDY'S MAIL

United States Is Still Wary of Aerial R. F. D.

Washington, Nov. 4.—Postmaster General Hitchcock announced that he had authorized J. A. D. McCurdy, the aviator who is to attempt a flight in an aeroplane from the deck of the Kaiserin Augusta Victoria fifty miles out at sea to New York on Saturday, to carry a bag of mail.

The postmaster general stipulates that the mail to be so conveyed shall contain no valuable contents. He suggests that it be made up of letters of greeting. The postmaster general also points out that the department could not sanction any experiment concerning the transfer of mail that involved a loss for which the government could be held responsible.

Why Hanovers Excel

The fame of Hanovers as the smartest looking, honest wearing, best fitting and most comfortable shoe ever made at anywhere near $3 is easily accounted for. When you buy shoes in the ordinary way you pay a profit to the manufacturer, the agent, the wholesaler, and the dealer, but in buying Hanovers you cut off three of those profit-takers. We put the middlemen's profits into the shoe where you get them, hence the remarkable value for so little money. Hanover Shoes at $3 are the best value of any standard article of wearing apparel ever sold. Our maker-to-wearer method, big sales, economical system of manufacture and one, modest profit enables us to produce this world-beater.

Blankets, Cotton and Wool, Fleece Comforts Under Price

In a way we did a stroke of bad business two years ago in buying twice as many Blankets as we could sell in one season, we bought them in such quantities because we got them under price at the time. Since then Blankets have been very much advanced in price, both Cotton and Wool, Cotton especially, but we are selling them priced on the basis of their cost in June 1909, in other words, the same old price of last year.

We Only Name a Few Here, Judge the Stock by these Prices

1 Lot 1¼, Heavy White Blanket full size and very heavy, $2.50. 1 Lot 1¼, Heavy Grey Cotton, full size, $1.00. FELL 35 FEET IN QUARRY

Charles Scheivert, of Union township, who was injured Wednesday at the stone quarry of the Hanover and Littlestown Turnpike Company, near Bollinger's Mill, was struck by a falling stone, and hurled a distance of 35 feet to the quarry's depths. His right leg was fractured at the ankle and his left knee cap broken. He is now under the care of Dr. H. M. Allenman.

DIVED OFF HIGH BRIDGE

Would-Be Suicide May Live After a Plunge of 158 Feet.
New York, Nov. 4.—William F. Harris, forty-two years old, tried suicide by diving off the Manhattan end of Highbridge.

The plunge took in 158 feet, and as there was a low tide Harris landed on the rocky bottom of the Harlem river and there sustained a possible fracture of the skull and severe internal injuries. And yet the surgeons at the Washington Heights hospital say that the man has a good chance to live.

There was nobody on the lofty structure when Harris climbed over the high parapet and shot quickly down to the water, but Hugh Williams saw the dive from a distance.

A rowboat was nearby, and the rescuer put out on the river. Harris came to the surface and was breathing when Williams pulled him over the side into the boat.

Poured Oil on Fire: Four Dead.
Pekin, Ill., Nov. 4.—An attempt to start the kitchen fire with kerosene cost the lives of Mrs. Mary Novosel and her three children, twins aged five years and a five-months-old baby. Mrs. Novosel was trying to pour kerosene from a lamp, which ignited, and an explosion followed. With her clothing ablaze she ran into the bedroom where her husband and three children were asleep. Her husband had been making frantic efforts to smother the flames, but failed to do so, and the bed clothing catching fire, the children as well as the mother were burned to death.

Peacock Plumage.
However much milliners may admire the plumage of the peacock and however much they may desire the money it brings, superstition prevents many of them from using it.

"Rather than give peacock feathers house room I would lose my best customer," one milliner declared. "I have done it more than once. Women who want their own materials made up have brought peacock trimming, and when I positively refused to handle it they went away angry and looked for somebody else to work up their peacock feathers. But no doubt they had a long chase, because two-thirds of the milliners feel just as I do about peacock feathers."

"But why?" asked a woman who carried a peacock feather in her hand bag.
"It's bad luck, that is why," said the milliner.—New York Sun.

No Paprika In Her Bones.
A Hungarian restaurant in New York became famous for its culinary triumphs, and many visitors to the city became acquainted there with the mysterious dishes produced in Hungarian kitchens. In one of these parties several years ago was a young matron from the far west, who, anxious to extend her culinary knowledge and seeing how her husband relished one of the courses of the meal, asked the head waiter for the recipe for the dish. "I can give it to you, madam," was the courteous reply, "but you can't make it."
"And why not?" asked the sightseer.
"Because you must be Hungarian. It might come right for an Austrian, but an American never. You must have paprika in your bones." And, taking that high ground, the request was refused.—New York Tribune.

Across the Mail.
"Say, Snibbs, let me use your phone, will you?"
"Sure. What's the matter with yours?"
"It's all right. I want to telephone to my wife that I'm going to bring a man from out of town to dinner."

"Well?"
"He's sitting in my room now, and I hate to have him watch my face when my wife tells me what she thinks of the proposition."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

An Essay on Man.
What a chimera, then, is man! What a novelty, what a monster, what a chaos, what a subject of contradiction, what a prodigy! A juggle of all things, a feeble worm of the earth, depository of the truth, cloaca of uncertainty and error, the glory and the shame of the universe.—Pascal.

Punishment

By HELOISE BRAYTON

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

Lieutenant Enrique Gonzalez was sent with fifty men of the Mexican army up into the mountains to get rid of a band of robbers who were a terror to the gold miners. What was his surprise to hear when he reached the locality in question that the bandits were led by a girl twenty-one or twenty-two years old.

Gonzalez cornered them and called on them to surrender. The reply that came from the little mountain pocket in which they were encamped was a burst of girlish laughter that was sweet and musical.

In the fight that ensued a number were killed on both sides, but the bandits were practically annihilated. A few were made prisoners, including the girl leader, who was addressed by the single name of Concia.

"Senorita," said her captor, "I dislike to shoot a woman. Promise me that you will abandon the life you are leading and I will spare your life."

"I prefer to die with these men whom you have not yet killed." The lieutenant winced. He would rather die himself than kill a woman, especially this one.

"Suppose," he said presently, "you all give me your pledge to go to your homes and lead honest lives."

"As for homes," the girl replied, "we have none, but we are willing to break up and join no other band, living as honest lives as we can without starving."

There were but half a dozen men left. Gonzalez would have shot them, but to save the girl he made good his proposition. Each one of the band gave the required promise and went his way. Concia did not seem by any means pleased with the arrangement on her own account. She acted as if she would rather have died and had only assented to it to save the lives of the remnant of her band. She turned away from the lieutenant without a word of thanks and, taking a trail leading up the mountain, was soon lost to view.

A year passed, during which no robberies by a regularly organized band were committed. Then the trouble broke out afresh. It was supposed that the remnant of the old band had broken their pledge and become the nucleus of a new one. Whether they had the same leader as before was a matter of conjecture. Gonzalez considered the man above all others to go to the mountains and destroy the robbers.

Friends warned the bandits of the approach of the soldiers, and they determined to retreat to a spot where they could defend themselves against a greatly superior force. Gonzalez followed them, but when he came up with them saw that they were not only in an impregnable position, but that they outnumbered his own force. Nevertheless he attacked them. Receiving a murderous fire, he lost a large number of his men, while none of the robbers was killed. Not only this; sallying from behind their improvised fort, they drove the soldiers before them till they in turn were obliged to take refuge in a gorge where they had a chance to defend themselves. Night came on, and Gonzalez, who knew no way out of the trap he was in, looked to the morrow for a slaughter of his force.

He had rolled himself in his blanket and was sinking into a troubled slumber when he felt a touch. By the light of a smoldering fire he saw bending over him a woman, and in that woman he recognized Concia.

"What—you here?" he exclaimed. "I supposed you were in command of the robbers."
"No, senor Lieutenant, though I am the only one of my band who is not there. I told them that if they broke their promise to you I would punish them, and I am here to give them that punishment. Let your fires go out and then get your men under arms. I will lead you to a place where you can come down on them, taking them unawares."

Gonzalez determined to trust her and acted accordingly. About midnight, when the fires were all out and the robbers could not see them move, the soldiers, led by Concia, who seemed to have the eyes of a cat, passed through a defile and just before the break of day emerged from a thicket of low trees, rushed down upon the sleeping robbers and after killing two-thirds of them overpowered the rest.

"This is your victory," said Gonzalez to Concia. "It is for you to say what shall be done with the prisoners." Concia peered into the faces of the captives and picked out three men. "These," she said to Gonzalez, "were of my band, and I saved them. They have broken their pledge. Indeed, they organized the new band. Shoot them. Spare the rest under a new pledge."

Her orders were carried out to the letter. When the troops were ready to depart Lieutenant Gonzalez promised Concia that if she would go with them he would see that the government rewarded her for saving the troops and being instrumental in the annihilation of the bandits.

"I will not go," she replied. "I did not save you and guide you to where you could attack them for pay. I did it because—because it seemed—that is what I would do."

As before, she turned away and was seen no more.

Twin Earthquakes.

Earthquakes which consist of two shocks separated by a brief interval of quiet or of two maxima of intensity are known as twin earthquakes. In Great Britain one in about every twenty earthquakes is a twin, and the strongest shocks experienced in that country belong to this variety. It is believed that twin earthquakes are due to impulses arising from two detached foci, separated in different cases from four to more than twenty miles, but lying along the same fault in the earth's crust.
